TEACHING/TRAINING

- 2020      SOC W 598: Motivational Interviewing with Teens (3)
 Taught a course that focuses on key elements of MI (Motivational Interviewing) developed by Miller and Rollnick (2015). This course develops and sharpen skills in communicating with adolescence to help them give voice to their own motivation for change. MI “Motivational Interviewing is a collaborative, goal-oriented style of communication with particular attention to the language of change. It is designed to strengthen personal motivation for and commitment to a specific goal by eliciting and exploring the person’s own reasons for change within an atmosphere of acceptance and compassion.” This interactive and practice-oriented course explores using MI in different context with adolescence (school, treatment, groups) including using MI in an SBIRT context (Screening, Brief Intervention and Referral to Treatment).
- 2019      SOC W 580: Quantitative Research Methods & Design (3)
 Updated and taught a course that covers logic, terminology, and methods of quantitative social science approaches to correlational, experimental, quasi-experimental, survey, and program evaluation research. Components of the research process (problem definition, concept explication, ethical evaluating, and designing defensible quantitative research studies)
